Showing generosity in a way helps us to understand and to acknowledge the fact that we are interdependent in a respectful and supportive way.

In Focus

It's said that Resilience is the ability to cope with the loss, change, and trauma that have been inevitable parts of life. Building resilience can help a person better adapt to life-changing events, cope with turbulent times, and bounce back from hardship and tragedy. The more strong and tough one become, the better one is able to tolerate the feelings of stress, anxiety, and sadness that accompany trauma and adversity—and find a way to rebound from setbacks.

But the question is, how strong you can become when you loose someone near & dear! How to ignore your trauma and move on with your life when you are left alone in this selfish world by the one who promised to be by your side whatsoever! The loss is irreparable. And forgetting and letting go of something so serious is a tough job. But weeping long for the same thing and being blind on your responsibilities and casual about your own life is not a great option too.

Bisnupriya Sahoo, a resident of Radhacharanpur hamlet, Janla Panchayat was a widow, who lost her husband a few years back. She stayed in the village with her only daughter who studies in Std – X in Janla School. After the death of her husband, her life turned upside down. In a moment, their happy life was destroyed. She used to be a housewife and only had the responsibility of household chores and raise her daughter. But after the sudden demise of her husband, she started giving regular tuitions to the children of her locality. With the widow allowance by the government and tuition fees, Bisnupriya managed the expenses of the family. But she was not ready to adjust with the same as she didn't want to compromise on her only daughter's education and her future. Therefore, she thought to engage herself with some other income generating activities. She had a sewing machine at home which she used for repair work and alterations of her daughter's dress.

To gain more knowledge on tailoring, Bisnupriya joined Skill Development Training Centre at Ogalpada that is set up by Mahashakti Foundation with the support of Indian Oil Corporation Ltd. (IOCL) & Skill Development Institute, Bhubaneswar. In the training centre, she focused on various nuances of pattern making and dress designing in a comprehensive manner. From taking measurements to producing final outfits, she became a pro in all. To achieve perfection in stitching, she started making frocks, tops, skirts etc. for her daughter at home with her sewing machine.

After completing her training of six months, she started making different outfits like designed kurtis, Anarkali dresses, chudidars, salwar-kameezes, gowns, nighties, and petticoats for women and frocks, shirts, skirts and tops for kids. She sold them at her home along with other tailoring materials and women stationery items. With that, she earned about INR 5000/- to INR 6000/- a month. She also took some outfits stitched at the centre and now is paying back the amount to the centre from her profit. She's doing savings in bank as Recurring Deposit of the amount she's earning from tailoring to use the money for her higher studies of her daughter. This shows, responsibility makes a person strong & stubborn irrespective of one's personal sufferings.
