Chilli leaf curl virus is transmitted by whiteflies (Bemisia tabaci) and is a serious threat to chili fields. Symptoms include the upward curling of leaves, plant stunting, and yield reductions. There are no treatments for viruses. Infected pepper plants cannot be cured; therefore, the focus should be on prevention.

Our Agri Experts and coordinators visited the fields of chilli farmers to identify different issues and provide door step hand holding support services.

Around 4000 women actively participated in their different economic activities targeting the monthly income of Rs.15,000. Now 50% of them reached up to Rs.10,000 p.m.
